Reminders:

Plagiarism

- Plagiarism is a serious offence.
- Plagiarism includes the following behaviors (but not limited to):
 - copy another student's work.
 - fail to properly cite other people's work or give proper credit to the original source.
 - using photos, illustrations or online materials downloaded from websites without permission or consent of the original owner of the materials.
 - hire or ask another individual to complete the assignment for you.
 - copy too many words or ideas from one or two sources, that makes up a significant portion of your work, even with proper citations.
- The lecturer has the right not to accept submission of plagiarized or duplicated work

Group work

- Each group member must actively participate in the completion of the assignment. Free riding is unethical and extremely unfair to fellow group members. Free riders will be awarded zero mark.
- Should any member be found not contributing to the assignment, the lecturer has the right to change the specific group's marks to individual marks.
- Each group member is expected to keep the contact numbers and e-mail addresses of the other members of the group.
- The group leader has the responsibility to ensure that all group members play a part in the completion of the assignment. The group leader is also responsible for ensuring that all members' names are written on the final submission.
- It is the responsibility of each group member to ensure that the final submission is complete and of an acceptable standard. Should any errors or omissions occur in the final submission, each group member is held accountable for negligence – in other words, failure to perform their responsibilities as expected.

Late submissions

- Late submissions will incur a penalty of 10% per day, up to a maximum of 3 days, after which the assignment will no longer be accepted.
- Additionally, if a second chance is granted, a further penalty of 10% will apply for one additional opportunity.
- Exceptions may be made for late submissions due to serious and valid circumstances (e.g., illness or family emergency), appropriate supporting evidence is provided.
